

Consciousness Creates Motion forming 2D Energetic Software for a 3D body

Royan Rosche

Abstract: Consciousness is you; the powers of yourselves are used everyday by failed introspective mankind whom is oblivious to their own nature. This paper makes it clear what consciousness is and what it creates in respect to the body, and how actually doing contemplative thought is necessary for biological nourishment because the mind of humans is their unique trait like infrared sensing is for snakes. Unified theories with atoms are like taking a mirror, shattering it, and then calculating how the pieces fit to create a backwards image. All reality is MENTAL based; all perception is tied to belief. All matter is moved by imagination, thought and willpower which have equal energy manifestations of electromagnetic waves, sound, and heat-aspects of one single energy.

Too many people have no idea what consciousness is which shows they have no comprehension over their own self. The mind is a processor of quantum information expressed in a 2D geometric format that has rhythms of time and set frequencies of motion. Consciousness manifests different type of measurable quantum energies that begin in the mind. Reality is an aspect of perception and internal ruminations of the imagination coupled to willpower. The closest approximation of mental energy faculties are heat, sound, and light forming a trinity of one single energy. Thoughts are geometric sound, imagination is light as electromagnetic waves that have an attraction or repulsion ability, willpower is heat. All of these energies are the main energies that move all matter in observational reality.

All mystical texts indicate that the mind can make its own spiritual elements which then work as the normal elements in the body, the substance of mana – a vaporous substance that condenses into water and solidifies into earth, the spiritual nourishment for continuation of biology. Consciousness is an unmovable unstoppable force that creates active motion in order to carry out its ideas. All active motion begins at the simplest coordinate plane of creation. Consciousness is first 1D to where an idea causes it to become 2D and develop heat which turns into geometric sound that becomes electromagnetic waves which together form four different vectors of motion moved by two opposite yet compliment forces, willpower as heat causing expansion and ascension, while sound causes contraction and descension, imagination carries out the law of the idea by electromagnetic waves which cause geometric sound to form any shape. Thus sound creates fixed geometrical motion while heat creates fluid watery motion and light is intelligent motion. These three things, willpower, heat, and electromagnetic waves form the foundation for quantum information that is processed in the mind.

All mental aspects are 2D, they are the software to the body which is hardware. All mental mechanisms cause a change in the body and in nature at subtle levels which grow progressively complex by forming fractals developing into the perceived or imagined form. Creation is mental based; all reality is seen through a lens of the mind where these three powers create an illusion of certain understanding. The author has no idea why human beings do not observe reality; instead they observe their numerical calculations and words from other minds. Observational reality is the basic foundation for understanding what creation is and how the mind works, thus all ancient cultures created cosmologies based on what they see, not what is imagined to be true. The author would like to point out that there are four tiers to existence that all work the exact same way; the 1D of human consciousness which is equivalent to single atoms or single energy quanta (these are indestructible as consciousness is), the 2D world of full quantum systems such as the four elements, the third world of stars, and the fourth world of the universal consciousness. Atoms have a three part form and seven levels because they arise from the three parts of the mind and the seven tones of thinking. There are four elements because of the four perceptual states of equal yet distinct magnitude that generate "reason" for the quantum computer such as the mind.

All evolution of mental aspects begins in 1D where active motion forms 2D and ideas with those motions form 3D structures. The mental world is akin to computer generated images using programming with words and numbers, the so called mathematical calculations of unified theories are human beings decoding their own self and their unique aspects of consciousness, the mind's sole purpose is to recognize itself, the fundamental law of the mental world is to know what it is as this was the first aspect of God. To create a unified theory of one thing will never occur unless humanity works as a single unit and individual minds are open up to extending their thoughts beyond brainwashing education. Human beings have all sciences fundamentally backwards, they say the earth is round when we perceive it as flat, they link artificial creations such as pharmaceuticals are good, when natural products are better, they say there are no four elements then create a periodic table while trying to unify the four forces which are the elements as the elements make up the forces. Modern mainstream is so backwards and upside down this collective ignorance is the manifestation of chaos. The only true way to know anything is by inner contemplation and removing all bias opinions, forget what you think you know, for no one knows anything, there are only belief systems-an aspect of faith- that create the perception of understanding. Out of all the internal transformation systems out there, Hindu teachings are the most clear and logical for anyone who attempts to understand.

Human beings must use their brains and mental software to reach optimal biological capacity, in doing so the body undergoes genetic change by allotropic modification of the atoms to incorporate more light and heat. Mainstream humans do not use their brains, they use memory of what they were taught and force fed then go to pleasure themselves with eclectic shocks of stimulation. They have absolutely no common sense and no existential thoughts or introspective contemplation, most are too busy using excess energy for worry of how they are perceived by other humans. What is fundamentally wrong with humanity is the lack of thinking, this is havoc for the body (and our environment), as the mind is the unique trait for humans (much like infrared senses is for snakes) they must use it to establish biological equilibrium. Why do you think mystics preach meditation? The Buddhist tells us to merge all thoughts to a point, i.e. focus. Thoughts, willpower and imagination create the four psychospiritual elements leading to efficient function of the body. The mind is tied directly to the body, modern man can see it but they do not comprehend, for example like the placebo effect or psychosomatic illnesses are shoved aside while they legalize natural plants...really? Is man so complacent they allow themselves to be slaves for a system that has zero interest in their wellbeing? The revolutionaries of tomorrow will be spiritual awakened humans. All of humanity will go through a radical change and realization that this societal system is a false sense of wellbeing and the fact that there is so much land on earth we do not need to be crowded in cities breathing in polluted air, nor do we need stores filled with useless toys. When the mind is fully awakened then all of that material nonsense is completely useless. Mankind is a slave race, controlled by a system so good at deception people actually like it and have no idea how deceived they are. All can have farms and their own food, yet we let the system control us by being domesticated slaves, it is absolutely time for a wakeup call and this will destroy all false systems in the near future.
