

The Racist Society

The Leading Professor Miguel Angel Sanchez-Rey [The Grandmaster, The Master of Space-Time]

The Academy of Advance Science and the Technological Sciences

The planet has look endlessly in denial about the unstable historical notions that has captivated much of the civil population of the Western nation-states. Looking upon itself as vindicated scientific radicalist that flirts with much of the world into implementing their visionary hopes of a neo-fascist scientific regime. A scientific regime that yearns to incite social neo-Darwinism upon the civilized world and that what appears as, “men of science” are, in factual truth, aristocratic members of a dying statist ideology, that is desperate to maintain a nationalist spirit in order to preserve both class privilege and racial supremacy.

Volatile decision-making has engulfed the global market economy, and at both ends of the Atlantic, governments (considered to be constitutional democracies that share an interrelated lineage of Anglo-Saxon culture and Christian dogma) has turn to destructive policy-making without any hindsight.

That is nothing much has been done, and what appears as the life-world succumbing to meta-philosophical reasoning, has resulted in the planet falling victim to a false sense of euphoria. Only as a consequence has the general population succumb to psychotic literature. But has also accepted the propaganda machines of special and powerful interests. Psychotic literature and propaganda machines that unleashes upon the planet the near uncontrollable epidemic of a pathological mass-movement that believes it can rise above false decision-making. Only causing a planet, seemingly at ease, to fall from grace into a modern dystopia in the Scientific Age.

For what is the nature of this dystopia, in which, the radicalization of the sciences is so embraced by the powerful elites that they set to shield the scientific radicalist, and the pure philosophers, from honest ridicule and true contempt. For very little humanism persist in the civilized Anglo-Saxon world.

A humanism, as Corliss Lamont eloquently conceptualized to be rooted -- in not only the freedom of speech, but also in civil activism, criticism of state and religious tyranny, and the protection of the general population from self-destructive private interest that focuses too much on short-term profits.

The racist society has been embraced in open arms by both neo-liberalism and neo-conservatism. And upon both ends, the racist society has welcome the modernist dystopian reality of the Scientific Age. As a precursor to a global dynasty class of scientists and philosophers whom yearn for a pure philosophical and a pure anarchistic ideology of class, wealth, and privilege to incite opposition against the Scientific Age. So that they may take control of decision-making, to further their fame and fortune, on spurious and dubious grounds. That is logo-centrism has been taking to the extreme. Yet racism and bigotry has become the bedrock of the sciences.

There can be no telling what anti-Chicanoism, anti-Semitism, anti-African, and/or anti-Asian sentiments may mean for much of the Anglo-Saxon world. And what path the sciences will follow, if it is to avoid racism and class privilege. Which has engulfed the learn institutions and scientific academies of the classical world (whom idealized themselves as imperial exemplification of colonialism and barbarism).

That is the United Kingdom has become the epitome of the racist society. And only upon learning what the nature of this racism is and what it's implications are to race relations on a planetary scale, it only dawns, upon many activists and outspoken dissidents, that a dialectical contradiction has made normalcy cruelty and racial injustice a righteous act.

As the sciences has become a radicalize branch of a rising pathological mass-movement that has invaded much of the civilized world.

Plunging the scientific process, not only into disarray, through cry havoc -- of the pillage and plunder of the masses, but also quiet mayhem (by the deception and conceit of individual self-interests). Bringing about a modern dystopia in which there is no end in sight to the false euphoria and racial bigotry.