

Prospectus of the War Machine

The war machine often leads to a competing effort for duplicate war machines in an attempt to realize competing self-interests. The war machine is a short-live byproduct of a war-like society. If the idea of the war machine spreads like a meme -- across an entire galaxy, the war machine will eventually tear apart the whole galaxy.

A frequent occurrence amongst the cosmos but unnoticeable to most primitive life (since an advance civilization, driven by the war machine, could ultimately be controlling such primitive life). Such that, primitive life may be unaware that they are being sheltered from a conflict that wages war amongst competing war machines. Competing war machines that are endeavoring to outwit and destroy the war machine. A war machine that has led to a controlled civilization.

For those reasons, The Second Task (which has been establish as the resolution to an extraterrestrial conflict) is essential to long-term human longevity. To safely expand from Earth's solar habitat -- in order to extend human survival, and thwart a population, energy and mineral crisis within Earth's solar habitat.

To do so, The Physicalist Program [PHPR] top-scientists will likely aim to search out for habitable zones in an attempt to realize the internationalist model -- peaceful co-existence through peaceful First Contact. By achieving First Contact (in the form of a ritual), humanity will be imparted knowledge of what habitable zones are open to human settlement.

Choosing co-existence and non-interference, such intelligent beings will remain neutral to human affairs. At that point, humanity will be able to safely expand from Earth's solar habitat. Achieving the beginning stages of the internationalist model in space exploration.

Constructing a safe passage that paves the way, in the Scientific Age, to a healthy transition into the dawn of the Advance Age -- approximately a century before arriving at Class 2 in the Omega-Kardeshev scale. An age of wild strength in which humanity will exist independently from other intelligent civilizations.

Traveling in and out of star gates and worm-holes -- yet Anarcho-syndicalist and peaceful in nature, but as close to a united federation of planets (under the stipulation of the internationalist model).
