

The Twelve Monkeys at Stony Brook University

After the permanent of the decline of the religious state and the sudden breakdown of the Earth's biosphere, the Simons Foundation has then endeavored into political fundraising to cater to their donors and constituency of the Long Island business community. Where in the south shore, organize and gang related crimes have increased and in the north shore, racketeering and higher prices has been an ominous aspect of everyday surrealism. Not too far away is Brookhaven Laboratories and not too close is Cold Spring Harbor Labs (pursuing mediocre and yet cutting edge experimental science through government and corporate funding).

The Twelve Monkeys at Stony Brook University are cult-figured scientists, pure philosophers and continental theorists. Teaching professors recognized for their achievement in scientific radicalism, radical politics and the fringe literary tradition. They are shunned from much of the mainstream faculty members. Choosing to partake in talks and colloquiums in order to further their agenda for radical transformation of the philosophical sciences, politics and religious transcendentalism.

Ideologically scattered in their visionary aims, they mischievously gather amongst each other to plan out their agenda for world transformation of social norms and taboos. Mildly schizophrenic in their personality types, they preside in their offices as experts in their fields. Meticulously (but benignly in their mannerisms) shuffling their paperwork and filing cabinets, their office hours are split between class discussion and recruitment of students into the army of the Twelve Monkeys.

For the army of the Twelve Monkeys is instrumental in the introduction of cry havoc into the Suffolk County district.

Which in a matter of eight years became a world-wide epidemic of control freaks and thugs.

Where cry havoc can be harness to achieve immediate ends in so little time and cost. But in which in its bioevolution meant the beginning manifestations of quiet mayhem. An irreversible sociological and anthropological outbreak that has led to lasting damage to the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, the collapse of the global academic hierarchy, and the immediate implementation of a lockdown to contain any further havoc or mayhem. But in which the prize system could not be salvaged, either way.

The original members of the Twelve Monkeys are unknown. But for all intended purposes, one of those members may be affiliated with the Simons Foundation but doubt is cast into the members' motives (and whether or not direct affiliation and/or enrollment is tantamount).

Psychological Assessment: the 12 Monkeys

Deadly teaching and/or research professors (or faculty and/or staff members) involve in radicalism and/or extremist political activism and/or fringe studies. They are usually from affluent and/or privilege backgrounds. Majority wise hold a technical and/or scientific bachelors' degree. Behave like schizophrenics. Shun from most of the faculty members from their prospective university and/or college of employment. And often enjoy causing havoc for their own amusement and enjoyment. Are unaware of the consequentiality of their action and often do not take direct responsibility for any action and/or behavior that may endanger the student population.

The 12 Monkeys are seen as liabilities to the student population. Often encouraging and luring students into atypical behavior that seeks to provoke the student body and/or faculty members into siding with their actions and/or ideology. Can provoke and encourage their students to violently and aggressively misbehave, and often their students begin to mature psychopathy after prolonged provocation and incitement from a 12 Monkey faculty member and/or staff member. 12 Monkey's are by nature reactionary.

Yet hard to spot even with a thorough background check. Usually misconstrued -- as both highly educated and cooperative in temperament, but capable of extreme behavioral tendencies. Nevertheless, carried away by academic life. And usually no sign of a criminal history. 12 Monkey faculty and/or staff member take enjoyment in manipulating others and can often depend on others to meet their superficial needs.

Usually the havoc they cause is organized but unintentional. And often there is money involve with long-term collaboration. Yet very little or no evidence of an attempt to cause intentional harm. But pose an existential threat to long-term harmony in their prospective university and/or college of employment.

Deadly and mildly-psychopathic -- with schizophrenic and predatory aggressive personality type. Silly, benign and mischievous in their mannerisms and behavior, are prone to taking things to the extreme and in causing harm and/or havoc for their amusement. While often manipulating and using others to finance the havoc they cause.

Often by playing games with their students and/or with faculty and/or staff members, etc., etc. Usually a collaborative effort with little or no long-term foresight.

Locally, 12 Monkey -- in dynamics. Globally a cloud-atlas mosaic. A path-psychological (behavioral cognitive and psychoanalytic mapping) approach defines the contemporary assessment of the sociopathic norm. Defining warning of the 12 Monkeys is not to be fooled by immediate perception and/or insubstantial bias.

Where the 12 Monkeys are a substitution for a conventional mosaic -- an increasing tendency to the norm. Hence the potentiality for the criminality of the absurd -- the nature of which is the mentality of the herd.
