

CHAWAZA FOUNDATION WORLDWIDE

EST. 2019

PRESENTS

PHILOSOPHICAL PRINCIPLE OF RELEVANCY THROUGH SCARCITY

(VOL. 1)

BY

BETASHA FELIX CHAWAZA

(B. TECH ESTATE MANAGEMENT AND VALUATION)

E-MAIL: betashafelixchawo@gmail.com

TWITTER/FACEBOOK: @Iamchawaza

E-MAIL: chawazafoundationworldwide@gmail.com

TWITTER/FACEBOOK: @ChawazaW/Iamchawaza

©2020

This principle states that; You shall continue to be relevant when you keep yourself scarce relative to your availability at a particular point in time. In Hausa language, there's this popular saying that "ido waka rena? Wan da na saba gani kullun" (Translate). The fact is even if it is money you are sharing everyday, when you make yourself too visible to people, you won't be respected as much but you might be valued because of the financial ingredient you are capable of adding to their life.

Below are some of the philosophical principles of relevancy through scarcity listed below;

- i. Hide yourself from people time to time.
- ii. Increase your knowledge base when you are hidden from people
- iii. Whenever you are available, make people feel your impact
- iv. Anybody you are not comfortable with, do not beg anything from him or her
- v. Be a contributor, even when you don't have, contribute within your capability
- vi. Avoid a strong relationship with a close one
- vii. Have different seats at your place of worship; do not sit on a particular seat, sit on different seats and at different axes